

Three kitchens.
One table.

Website, online ordering, reservations and the Interest Account for Lagos's Nigerian, Polish and Continental restaurant

CLIENT PRESENTATION

The table Lagos talks about, and the easiest one to book

Small Africa brings three kitchens together under one roof, cooked properly and served with care. The website has to feel like the restaurant: warm, confident and luxurious. And it has to work hard.

1. Nigerian
   Smoky party jollof, suya, egusi
2. Polish
   Pierogi, żurek, pączki
3. Continental
   Beef Wellington, lobster thermidor

02 · THE PROBLEM

Great food is not enough to fill a room

1

Diners decide on their phone

They find restaurants on Instagram and Google Maps and leave if the menu is slow, a PDF, or out of date.

2

Bookings get lost

Reservations arrive by DM, WhatsApp and phone calls. Nobody sees capacity at a glance, so tables sit empty or get double-booked.

3

Delivery apps own the customer

They take a commission on every order and keep the customer's details and loyalty.

4

No reason to come back

Without a loyalty programme, a great first visit doesn't turn into a regular.

From a post on Instagram to a regular at the table

1 Discover

2 Browse

3 Order or book
Delivery, pickup or a table in seconds

4 Pay
Paystack: card, bank transfer or USSD

5 Track

6 Return

Every step works on a phone, and every step brings the guest back to Small Africa's own website, not a third-party app.
